

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONDUCTING THE STATE EXAMS

(Winter semester 2023/2024)

The practical state exam starts at 07:30

Meeting point: small animal clinic.

By lot, you will be referred for examination of a patient at one of the three departments - internal medicine, surgery or obstetrics. Therefore, the patient is related to one of three disciplines - internal medicine, surgery or obstetrics. Under the guidance of the assistant on duty, you will perform a detailed examination of the patient. You will orient yourself and determine a diagnosis. You will then be able to write a patient examination report within about half an hour. After you prepare the report, you will pass it to the examiners.

The preparation of the protocols will take place in the computer lab (398-17), and the exam itself will be held in Department of Obstetrics and Reproduction room (TBD).

The exam conducted by a panel starts at 10:00. The examination panel consists of three professors - from internal medicine, surgery and obstetrics. After entering, you will report on the patient - clinical status, diagnosis, treatment, prevention. Be reminded that the patient pertains to one of the three specialties - internal medicine, obstetrics and surgery. You will be tested and have a talk with the instructor of the respective discipline. You will first describe your patient. As a guide for your answer, you can use the written protocol. Once you successfully pass this stage, based on the lot, you will pick an exam ticket. The exam ticket contains three questions - in the three disciplines - obstetrics, internal medicine and surgery. You will talk about the other two topics, different from the patient's related discipline. For example, if the patient was in surgery, you would talk about obstetrics and internal medicine.

In total, the discussion and the exam by a commission last between half and one hour.

After all students have completed the exam, which would be around noon, the commission officially announces the results.

Theoretical state exam starts at 8:00

Meeting point: the library of the section of Infectious Diseases, Room No. (TBD)

The exam will be conducted by a commission of three professors - from Infectious Diseases; Parasitology and Parasitic Diseases; Veterinary-Sanitary Expertise. You pick an exam ticket. It will contain three questions - from the three disciplines. You will talk about all topics and answer the questions.

After the exam has ended, around noon, the commission will officially announce the results.
